What is Brainzooming™

THE BRAINZOOMING GROUP

Since launching in 2009, Brainzooming has been consulting to clients across industries. We design and implement engaging, productive, and fun strategy processes; they lead to successful collaborative plans and results.

Clients most frequently ask Brainzooming to develop strategies for their important opportunities in:

- Organizational transformation
- Innovation
- Branding
- Leadership

We offer Brainzooming services and content through:

- Custom engagements in-person, online, and hybrid
- Blast! online collaborations delivering ideas and impact in thirty minutes
- Speaking and training programs, both in-person and online
- Digital books, magazines, courses, articles, and tools that translate the Brainzooming method into DIY resources

The Brainzooming Approach to Collaboration

The Brainzooming method and tools emerged from inside a Fortune 500 organization. The result? Our approach makes us the collaborative, results-focused type of partner that you want as a client.

From our first conversation with you, Brainzooming translates your objectives and aspirations into a collaborative process. We are tenacious in delivering your most important outcomes. Through inviting and supporting diverse participants, we'll empower them to positively shape your strategy, implementation, and results.

If you have been searching for a partner who prizes collaboration, diversity, flexibility, learning, results, and fun as much as you do, your search is over. You are ready for Brainzooming!

Value of Strategic Planning Questions

Productive strategic thinking exercises are at the heart of The Brainzooming Group methodology. Great brainstorming and strategic planning questions encourage and allow people to talk about what they know including factual information, personal perspectives, and their views of the future.

The Value of Strategic Thinking Exercises

I tell people who ask about how we developed The Brainzooming Group methodology that a big part of what motivated me were the business people I worked with who didn't know how to fill out strategic planning templates and worksheets.

What they did know a lot about were the businesses, customers, and markets they served. We found we could ask them strategic planning questions and brainstorming questions to capture information to create strategic plans.

Since I could write the plan, knowing which strategic planning questions to ask (within a fun, stimulating environment) was key to developing creative, quickly-prepared plans infused with strategic thinking.

And when you combine "creative," "strategic thinking," and "quickly-prepared," you get Brainzooming!

What's in a name? What's in a lot of new product names: unrelated syllables, parts of words, and edgy-sounding acronyms. If, instead, you'd like to explore cool, high-impact options, these questions are for you!

8 Creative Thinking Questions for Creating Cool Product Names

8 questions to go beyond bland names for new products and develop names that stand out from the crowd.

Another 21 Creative Thinking Questions for Naming Cool Products

Even more questions to stimulate creative ideas for cool product names!

The infographic features a central white starburst containing the text: "Creating COOL New Product NAMES" and "8 Inspiring Creative Thinking Questions". Below this, it says "From The Brainzooming Group" and "Brainzooming.com". The background is orange with several question prompts in white text:

- UNCOMMON Variations: What are uncommon alternatives to words describing comparable products?
- COOL Outcomes: What words describe cool outcomes from the product experience?
- IMPRESS Mom and the Kids: What words you use to describe this new product to impress your family?
- MEGA Users: What words describe where, when, why, how, and what it's used for by the product's best customers?
- Deep EMOTIONS: What words add emotional impact to the product name?
- Super POWERS: If this product delivered super powers, what would they be?
- Major HOWS: What words describe how the product works when it is at its best?
- Big WOWS: What words would be the most exciting, powerful, fun, surprising, or memorable?

If you've been counting as we go,
that's 592 questions.

Compiling this eBook, we weren't sure how many questions to include. There was no specific starting goal.

But 592?

592?

Why couldn't it have just been 600 questions? That would have been so easy, so remarkable.

Instead of falling short of this newly-important goal, however, we've made it so you can turn the page for 8 MORE valuable questions we use!

Asking What Others Think

of 600

Unless you're doing something locked in a room all by yourself (and we won't ask questions about that), people will likely have varied perspectives of how a plan, initiative, or event went. For ongoing improvement, gather these rich perspectives with questions!

We ask a variety of open-ended questions after any type of significant activity to solicit perspectives from other participants.

The questions have grown and morphed over the years. The original critical thinking questions was from the Plus Minus Interesting approach developed by Dr. Edward de Bono.

The original questions were:

1. What worked or was successful?
2. What didn't work or failed to meet expectations?
3. What things were intriguing about this?

We later added another question to solicit new ideas from participants:

4. What recommendations do you have if we do this again?

Shortly after that, we added another question to see if people had, well, questions:

5. What questions do you have following this?

In some situations, people may be reluctant to share negative reactions. When we suspect that may be the case, we'll substitute a failed-to-meet-expectations question with these two questions:

6. What would you like to see more of if we do this again?
7. What would you like to see less of if we do this again?

We also often ask a catch-all question to cover anything that falls through the cracks:

8. Is there anything else you expected to happen / be covered that we didn't do?

So! With those 8 questions, you now have...
